The School

EDHEC Business School was created in 1906 as a part of the Catholic University in Lille and has been autonomous since 1958. In 1991 a second campus was inaugurated in Nice, on the French Riviera. The two campuses of EDHEC have the opportunity to be located in two dynamic and complementary regions. Indeed, Lille is known for its industries and its companies of distribution made famous by great families like Mulliez, while Nice is famous for its international opening towards the South and the high tech activities of Sophia-Antipolis.

EDHEC provides its students with classrooms, reading and study rooms, multimedia centres, amphitheatres, cafeterias etc. The amphitheatres can seat between 50 and 350 people, and all of them are equipped with the latest projection apparatus, providing the best possible tools for communication and exchange. These include computer rooms, language laboratories, intranet, libraries and research centres.

Today, EDHEC has more than 90 permanent faculty, 34 visiting faculty and 800 adjunct faculty. Two thirds of the professors have a PhD or a doctorate and 25% of them are from a foreign country but nearly all teachers have international experience and the ability to teach in English.

The City

The city of Nice is the fifth largest city in France with 346,000 inhabitants and is part of the large urban centres with Antibes, Cannes, Grasse and Menton. It is a 2-hour drive from Genoa, 3 hours from Milan, 3 hours 30 minutes from Torino (Italy), 4 hours from Geneva (Switzerland) and 6 hours from Barcelona (Spain). Nice is located on the French Riviera, known worldwide thanks to its outstanding natural environment and the quality of its tourism infrastructure. It is also positioned as one of the most promising host the boom of the innovative high-tech service and business sectors predominate, testifying to the French Riviera's two major industries: tourism and technology.
